I have been involved in the Templist movement since 2022. This is when it first started. It has always been an online joke, but it became a real thing starting in 2023. Real life groups were beginning to come up. The Author lost control of many of these groups, and that has put us where we are today. The Author is urging us to call him "führer", he wants us to spread rumours of his greatness, he thinks this will allow him to control the so-called "disassemblist" organisations. He took the extra step of claiming to be the reincarnation of Adolf Hitler. It's kind of a joke but also kind of not really. But it seems like a joke to me, so I am done with it. As a result of some personal slights I am going to expose the whole organisation. The whole thing is really a joke and I will not let anyone think it is real.

First there is the Geneva Templist Society. It describes itself like this:

"The purpose of the Geneva Templist Society is the proselytization of targeted persons. We select individuals from lists of contacts, and we socially engineer funny pranks, hoaxes, as well as 'synchronicities' to convince the targeted persons. The skills that are involved in this activity are transferable. I expect my members to obey any commands concerning their use. There are two 'meeting groups': Geneva, and Fribourg. I am from Fribourg. These cities provide plentiful opportunities for high level people to be convinced. Most of the time we fail, but some of the time we succeed in achieving minor apprehension in the target. We use this for our own benefit. It is unrealistic to look for total conversion so we do not even proselytise Templism strictly. Sometimes we use something different. I am only interested in local members. Applicants must perform tasks on our behalf to my satisfaction. I take the principle of autocracy seriously and nobody shall defy me, but the expectations are more or less clearly set. We are friends and we meet regularly. We should be thought of as prank pullers, but to a certain extent we have made this a viable organisation. I am able to compensate members for some tasks! We speak mainly French and English. I speak German and my French is poor, so English is a big plus. We are about half initiated Templists, so it is not a necessity. I am an initiated Templist. Some of us think Templism is a funny meme only. I am a…rabid Templist and I believe The Author's words that Templism is the revival of the Calvinist spirit."

GTS is the only organisation that is a real thing. It is secretive. It is led by a Swiss German named Ragnar who none of us have met. The Author has always been jealous about not having control of GTS. Since Templist Canon says that it is "sola scriptura", it doesn't require The Author's authority. He can always make his authority canonical, but he is not going to do that because he is superstitious and believes that the gods will not allow it. Maybe he will one day, that would be an interesting turn of events. But right now GTS is not accepting The Author's führer claim. One of the first things he tried to "order" us to do was to audit GTS so he could figure out its operations, but Ragnar didn't want that. Ragnar has since stopped talking to The Author on the internet. The Author keeps coming up with "strategies" to get intel on them but nothing ever works, but he keeps trying. The "führer" idea is another one of his "strategies". He is jealous that GTS is actually doing something in the real world. I don't know much else about it.

Next is The English Sphere. This claims to be thirteen people who meet in England sporadically. That's true, but it's only seven people. They are part O9A associates of The Author and part some people who have been picked up from the "United Basketweavers" network of OG Roland Rat, who is also Academic Agent. They don't really care what is going on, which means that they are de facto dissemblists.

Next is LDS Titans. This group claims to be only two Mormons practising Christian Templism in Utah. In fact it is zero people, it's just a fake of The Author.

Next is the Stadhouders. This is a group of Dutch real estate investors primarily from Amsterdam. They are led directly by The Author, and it's the only group that accept the führer claim. They don't even really accept it, they are just agreeing to play along. Some of these people follow The Author on X. Supposedly we are always told that they are associated with Dutch criminals. They are rich, but they don't actually do anything. They are just people who like The Author's writings. They are all selling right now because Dutch tax laws are too much for them. The Author has honestly devoted more time talking about that in private than our religious goals. He has a property in Amsterdam himself, which is maybe why he met us all in Rotterdam during the "Templist Synod" despite saying that he came from America. He is definitely American though. Maybe they are all Jewish. Also, I said that they were “led” by The Author. It is only nominal. He exercises no control over these people. They think his claims of authority are funny and they play along with him to advance Templism. He can’t actually order them to do anything. He can’t order anyone to do anything, which is why the führer claim is ridiculous.

Lastly is the Serbian Templist Clique. This was a fake from the start. I mean, I’m not going to go into all the details because it is already on Templist Lore extensively, but just look at all the claims that are made. They are fanciful. Yet Svevlad is claiming to be a disassemblist. I assume The Author put him up to it.

These groups are listed in the “Directory” in Templist Lore, I am not just making them up.

Then there’s everyone online. We are all pretty much against The Author now if not against Templism. I’m not actually against Templism, I just can’t trust it anymore because The Author controls what goes into the Canon. But Cyber Viking, Flagellant, Literatus (called GoreanWeeb on X), and Templist Media Center (whoever that is), are all still loyalists. But they aren’t actually loyal, they are just memeing along with him. Nobody takes his claims seriously. This is basically a conflict between the people who wanted to take Templism seriously (I did), and people who think it is only a joke.
